

so alive

starting as a cell we have grown our vision to include an earth so full of wisdom and the insanity of knowing now plagues our minds so alive has there ever been a time like this where we all play pretend with our life so fragile have we ever loved so freely while a blind eye always sleeping tells nothing of what its seeing because no one would believe it have we ever been so alone in a world so full of people where no one has to feel one another to stay alive i am sitting on the moon watching the clouds collide the dance of all that may ever come to be

